A Genevan Farce

The honors so widely distributed after Locarno seem to have become tarnished. The flowers heaped upon the Great Statesmen of the New Era in Europe seem to have wilted. The intoxication that came of deep draughts of the "Locarno Spirit" seems to have left behind the usual headache.

It required only a brief fortnight at Geneva, when words were put to the test of action, to prick the bubble of the loudly-heralded New Dispensation and to expose the League of Nations for what it is -- a club of intriguing diplomats who have no more conception of the real spirit of the people of Europe than their predecessors of the Holy Alliance. They are, in fact, the 20th Century Holy Alliance against the PEOPLES of the world.

Only fools and muddle-headed liberals—sufferers from political anaemia—ever believed the League of Nations to be anything else. These withstood all the years since Versailles despite the proofs of the League's real character, and were not disillusioned. Naturally they were overjoyed with the fair words of Locarno. This was the real "peace", so long withheld.

But France, still breathing the air of Louis Fourteenth, as Lloyd-George puts it, had already before Locarno made her plans to offset Germany's entrance into the League by stacking the Council with an anti-German bloc. And apparently he had got Chamberlain's promise of support.

A few civilized statesmen--from Sweden and Czecho-Slovakia—stood pat with Germany and the plot failed, for the time being at any rate. And now Chamberlain and the rest are back at home, making alibis for the farce of Geneva, while the pro-League statesmen of the world still prate hopefulness, like the prize idiot of literature, the famous Dr. Pangloss of Voltaire's Candide who insisted that "All is for the best in this best of all possible worlds."

China, it certainly is plain, has had lessons enough in the double-dealing of the Great Powers. Yet a simple narrative of the events may help to bring home just to what depths on the trickiness of the so-called Statesmen habitually goes in dealing with the affairs of the world.

Locarno created some arbitration treaties and a Rhine Security Pact. It decided upon Germany's admission to the League and upon giving her a permanent seat on the League Council. At its very inception the League Council was set up as, eventually, a council upon which the major powers of the world were to have seats -- England, France, Italy, Japan, Germany, Russia (when she became "good") and the United States whenever mendacious propaganda could succeed in winning her over to the League and to a place of honour as treasurer for Europe's periodic sprees of bellicosity.

French statesmen knew the original plans as well as did British statesmen. But France, still purple in the face whenever the word "German" is spoken suddenly, would not see a Council of five with Germany one of that five. She played the usual backstairs game of stacking the cards against honest play. And she won over Mussolini and Chamberlain to her plan for giving Poland a permanent seat along with Germany. France, being angel to the amorphous entity which is Poland, could always bank upon

London Daily Herald

London:- "Is it possible to capture the Church? It seems almost hopeless. But get the Red Flag flying on top of all the churches in Plymouth and St. Paul's Cathedral, and you would capture England, so great is the power of the pulpit."

The Rev. C. J. Bueknall, priestin-charge of Delabole, Cornwall, gave this advice when speaking at Devonport yesterday.

"Organise, for that is only how you will smash this Empire," he went on. "It is a system of commercial exploitation all over the world-organised exploitation of subject races formed and kept going for the sake of profits.

"influencing" whatever Council member Poland might name,

Chamberlain apparently gave his word to support the French claim. Meanwhile, to hide the Polish game, some power, presumably Italy, induced the Brazilian delegate to play the actual counters and to appear in the light of the obstructionist. And Briand, playing innocent, talked in big style to the correspondents at Gevena about "concessions" to Germany, when as a matter of fact it had never been a question of "concessions" but simply of putting through the promises of Locarno.

What happened is history-foul history in its way, but only characteristic of the way the usual order of diplomat works, in whispers rather than with outspoken words, by indirection rather than straight forwardly, by "deals" rather than honestly.

Geneva may seem remote enough from Peking. Yet not so remote. The men who represent the Powers at Geneva are counterparts of the men who represent the Powers in the rest of the world. No better, no worse. They represent, first and foremost, great financial interests. They act never for governments and, even more remotely, for PEOPLES. They act for great financial interests, their programs are the programs of World Capital. They are the messenger boys of Wall Street, of Threadneedle Street and for whatever that street may be in which French bankery and financiery has its Parisian nest. Most of them know it and acknowledge the leash. Some of them are too stupid to know it.

Geneva, during these past weeks, has been yet another fiasco staged, it would seem, by the gods themselves to expose the chicanery and perfidy of modern diplomacy, and yet another warning to the PEOPLES of the world.

His Excellency could not speak further regarding the question, Rademacher reached the goal but he pointed out that China's four yards ahead of Mr. Macoriginal proposal had undergone wellan, considerable modifications.

Mr. Hioki further stated that although the negotiations of a Sino-Japanese reciprocal treaty were not yet started, because the Foreign Minister of China was not appointed, it was expected that they would begin as soon as the Minister is appointed.

His Excellency concluded the interview by mentioning that the Commission on Extraterritoriality had finisaed the studies in the Law Codes brought forward by China, and that the Delegates would start on their tour of inspection in the provinces. The visit to Kalgan would be omitted owing to the situation. The Delegates would first go to Shangin the Yangtze provinces.

The situation is not apparently developing in favour of Mr. C. T. Wang, who is in close relations with the Kuominchun, with the result that members of T_{ass} the Corps Diplomatique are under the impression that he might resign his duties at the Tariff Conference, and that the Conference will not sit for the time being.

The New Minister did not appear at the Cabinet meeting, nor has he assumed office in the Waichiao Pu. However, it is understood that he is now being consulted on all important diplomatic documents which are taken to his home. According to one report, Minister Hu will assume office on Saturday morning and then attend the Cabinet session.

No successor has been found for the Ministry of Education since the resignation of Ma Chun-wu. The Minister of Communications; Kung Hsin-chan, did not attend this morning's Cabinet meeting due to the fact that his returned resignation petition, which had been entrusted to a vice-Minister, had not yet reached him.

Discuss Bond Issue

The subject of the domestic bond issue was the chief item of business at the Cabinet session. The return of the Kuominchun to Peking and their apparent intention to remain here until a peace solution has been worked out, is said to have again brought the bankers around to considering the issue.

The authorities have given the promise that the funds are to be used exclusively for payment of administrative expenses, and salary of the police and troops tempting to alter this rate are directly responsible for the safety subject to arrest. of Peking, and not for military RUSS. Lu Tells Reasons For The Retreet Of The Kuominchun

Not Necessary For Military Purposes; A Matter of Long Line Of Defence And The Bandit Plus Foreign Nature Of Enemy

Chung Mei In an interview given by General Lu Chung-lin, Liu Chi, and Li Ming-chung, the causes attributed to the retreat of the Kuominchun are untrue.

The retreat was by no means a defeat on the battle line. On the Luanchow front, the Kuominchun sustained no loss since it adopted a defensive position, and in the fighting to the south of Tientsin, the Shantung-Chihli allies suffered reverses falling back to Tsangchow.

The Real Reason

The chief reason given for the retreat are as follows:

First, it is unworthy that the well-trained Kuominchun troops should fight with opponent bandits, recruited from time to time. Second, the bandit troops can exact funds from the localities to support themselves for a longer period, so that the Kuominchun is weakened financially since it abstains from imposing on the people.

The Long Line

Third, the longer the battle ine the greater exposure to attack, as shown in the defeat of Chang Tso-lin in the first Fengtien-Chihli war. Moreover the driving against the Shantung-Chibli allied forces might fail to have an end if pursuit is continued on and on.

Fourth, any untoward incident in the rear would expose Peking to serious danger for which the Kuominchun has assumed responsibility.

Fifth, in name it is a fight against Chang Tsung-chang and Li Ching-lin, but in reality it is a fight against the Russian Whites, and a certain foreign country.

With peace appeal voiced by the prominent figures, the Kuominchun resolutely withdrew its forces showing sincerity to negotiate peace. Furthermore, the concentration of the Kuominchun in a small area strengthens its position to defend or to attack pending the negotiations. The Kuominchun will assume absolute responsibility Harbin, March 23 .- M.
